OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

The Politicians and the Premier—Sir John is Harrassed—Takes a Holiday.

Sir Leonard Tilley on British Columbia—A Deputy Postmaster in the Tolls.

[From our own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 24.—The past week has been one of the dullest in the city, so far as news concerned, since the closing of parliament, and unless something unexpected opens matters will remain in this condition for the next two or three weeks. With the first of July commences the holidays for Supreme and Exchequer courts, which means a dearth of legal news. By the end of the week, or the first of the next at the latest, Sir John Macdonald accompanied by Lady Macdonald and daughter, leave for Rivier du Loup, where they will remain for the greater part of the summer. As those acquainted with the ways of political business in Canada know, no appointments or anything of an important character is transacted during the absence of the Premier. Delegates for public expenditures, office seekers and politicians know that to visit Ottawa while the Premier is elsewhere would be a mere waste of time. One man runs the affairs of this country, and that man is Sir John Macdonald. In this way it will be seen that as well as legal news there will also be a dearth of political news. Newspaper correspondents, even including the "Ottawa liars", as they are called, of the American press will have to let their imaginative powers immensely if they make their correspondence interesting even to the uninitiated.

LOTS OF POLITICIANS.

With the news that the Premier is about to leave on his holidays comes the usual influx of politicians and political wire-pullers to the capital so at they may have a parting word with a "Old Man" regarding the varied interests which they represent. Some are on petitions for themselves or their wives. These are they that have been imposed to have done political service to their party. Others are members of parliament who want positions for troublesome constituents or it may be public favors for their constituency, so as to make themselves solid for the nomination if not when the present parliament is dissolved. To give TIMES readers an idea I just in the corridors of the two departmental buildings to day the following all wishing to see the Premier: Dr. Hodgsoth, M.; Clarke Wallace, M. P.; S. J. Dawson, P.; Mr. Cimon, M. P.; Bergeron, M.; Joseph Tasse, ex-M. P.; and Dr. Montague, ex-M. P. What a variety of demands they represented. Let me take them in order. Mr. Hodgsoth's wishes would not extend beyond his own constituency, unless, for instance, he tried to come up the bar in the lower regions of the House of Commons as he once spoke of doing before. Clarke Wallace, at the present time, is the white haired boy with the Premier. He fought nobly for the party at Goderich during the Grand Orange Lodge, and now he wished to report to the Premier as to the growth of the anti-Jesuit wave. Mr. Wallace would get an interview, no matter how busy the Premier was. But to the vast majority he was "engaged." S. J. Dawson is always after some little concessions to the Indians, and he is referred to Mr. Dewdney and the Indian Department. Mr. Cimon, is one of the jolliest and best hearted French Canadians in the house, but a strong supporter of the Jesuits. Mr. Bergeron stumped Ontario and Quebec at the last general election against Sir John Macdonald on the Riel cry, and has never voted against the chieftain since that time. Had the Liberals been elected Mr. Bergeron would have been one of the applicants for a position in the cabinet. Dr. Montague has been driven out of his old constituency, Heldimand, after trying to sit for it by a variety of ways other than by having a majority of votes. He has spent money in the courts for election purposes, and doubtless will not go unrewarded. Joseph Tasse has been a pauper on the government, and consequently on the country, since I first knew him. I forgot to mention that among the number I also met Mr. Fred Berwick, of Toronto. He has done various services for the party, but always reserved some for himself to return. Not one of the whole party, I am safe in saying, was in pursuit of anything of a disinterested character or what in any way would promote the best interests of the country.

SIR LEONARD TILLEY.

I had a chat with Sir Leonard Tilley to-day on his return from British Columbia. He is lavish in his praise in regard to the progress of the country, the nature of the climate and the advancement of the various pursuits, particularly mining in the province. Agricultural land was small, compared with the extent of the province, but what was of it was exceedingly rich in its producing qualities. This was his first visit to the Province, and he rather believed with Goldwin Smith or Edward Blake, who repeated the statement that British Columbia was "a sea of mountains." Sir Leonard, than whom there was never a more honest, upright and conscientious politician in Canada, will remain here for a few days, visiting friends. The quiet and unostentatious way he takes in transacting public business or in visiting a part of the Dominion for pleasure and information, was his sole reason for going to British Columbia, marks the general character of the man. Had Sir Leonard Tilley so desired it, the Canadian Pacific would have only been too glad to have placed a private palace car at his disposal on the trip, but that was never his mode of travel. They have done more for those who have done them less favors, for be it remembered that Sir Leonard Tilley was Finance Minister during the time of the construction of the C. P. R., and through his hands passed all the money which was received by the syndicate from the government.

SEEMING SEA.

Few days pass that alarming dispatches are not received here from Washington as to the intentions of the American government in regard to the closing of Behring sea and driving out the "pirates" as the Canadian sealers are called. How matters are progressing there will reach Victoria equally as soon as Ottawa, and I may merely say that so far as the government is concerned they have got no additional official information on the subject. They, however, continue to assert that Britain is doing all she can to press the settlement of old claims as well as for better understanding in the future.

A SAD AFFAIR.

The sentence of Rev. Mr. Burns, deputy postmaster at Kingston, to two years in the provincial penitentiary for embezzlement of funds in the Kingston postoffice, is rather a sad affair. Mr. Burns, who was connected with the English church, was here last winter and delivered a number of missionary sermons. He was a popular preacher and drew well. The bodies never recovered. His friends say that he committed the theft under demurrement of the brain from the bereavement he suffered. One strange thing is that the man who preceded him as deputy postmaster, Mr. Shannon, was also found guilty of robbing the mails, but escaped to the States before he was caught.

MERCIER'S SPEECH.

Hon. Mr. Mercier's great French-Canadian Jesuitical speech is a matter of much comment here. It adds to the anti-Jesuit wave. SLABTOWN.

ALDERMEN'S MEETING.

Communications—By-Laws—Addition to City Hall—Accounts.

The usual weekly meeting of the board of aldermen was held last evening. Present: His Worship Mayor Grant, Ald. Vigelius, Harris, Wilson, Harrison, Goodacre, McKillican and Styles.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and adopted.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From A. J. Rowbotham & Co., requesting permission to place trap-doors in the sidewalk in front of their new premises. Referred to street committee.

From W. Jones, informing the board that the opening of the Johnson street sewer cuts off egress from the wharf at the foot of Johnson street. The writer stated that he was at a loss of $10 a day through the opening of the sewer and asked for compensation. Filed.

From Drake, Jackson & Helmcken, in reference to commercial travellers' licences. Referred to the finance committee.

From John Teague, architect, asking for street lines at the north-west corner of Douglas and Yates streets. Granted.

From P. R. Brown, asking for improvements on Scoresby street. Referred to street committee, with power to act.

From J. W. Tolmie, asking when compensation will be made for right-of-way through the Tolmie property at Cloverdale. Referred to city barristers.

From John Haggerty, offering to deposit 1100 yards of earth near the Reformed Church at 15 cents per yard. Referred to street committee.

From W. Atkins, stating that the sum offered for damage to a fence was not sufficient. Filed.

From Eberts & Taylor, city barristers, stating that the drafts of by-laws submitted were not objectionable. The cattle by-law would be submitted at the next meeting. Filed.

From J. Piercy and other residents of Menzies street, James Bay, asking for a box drain. Referred to street committee.

From the trustees of the Gorge Road Methodist Church asking for a sidewalk on the south side of the Gorge Road to Government street. Referred to street committee.

ACCOUNTS

For the month of June amounting to $3,820.94 were read and referred to finance committee.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Ald. McKillican asked leave to introduce a by-law to amend the hack by-law. The electric street railway by-law was read a first time.

An amendment to the buildings by-law was read a first time.

The Victoria-Saanich-New Westminster railway by-law was read a first time.

The water works, fire department and park by-laws were laid over for one week on account of the absence of the introducer.

The aldermen's remuneration by-law was read a second time.

His worship said he noticed a defect in the by-law. Should an alderman die, according to the by-law another alderman might draw a salary at the close of the year. This was a mistake also in the mayor's remuneration by-law.

Ald. Harris moved that tenders be called at once for an addition to the city hall. Delivered.

His worship considered that it was time to consolidate the by-laws. They were in a bad condition and should be put in someone's hands to put them in shape. A motion to hand the by-laws to the city barrister to be consolidated was carried.

The board then adjourned.

BURGOYNE BAY.

Interesting Personals—School Examination and Other Topics.

[Former Own Correspondent.]

Everybody here is busy. The weather has been very wet during the past week.

Mr. Akerman has returned from Nanaimo; Mrs. Williams and Mr. Maxwell from Victoria, the latter bringing with him a new mower and improved hay rake. He expects a high power threshing machine in a few days—all in the direction of advanced farming.

The Blue Ribbon social of the 29th inst., although not so largely attended as the last, was pleasant to all. Mr. Horel made some very practicable remarks, which were attentively listened to. A duet by Mrs. Haskins and Mrs. Lee was well encored. Excellent readings were rendered by Mr. Rogers and Mr. Pollard, and the president, Mr. Walsh gave a song, each of first class merit. Duet, Mr. and Mrs. Haskins, rapturously applauded; mellifluous recitation by Misses G. and S. Hord and S. Herbert Horel. Mr. Perkins was good as usual. Politicity Papers, volume 1, No. 2, by Mrs. Haskins, was quite good, the reader being interrupted at times by rapturous applause; Mr. Rogers, temperance reading, and the president's remarks and the meeting closed.

Our school examination was largely attended, and the earnest attention on the part of the parents was only equal to the ready and intelligent answers of the pupils to the several questions put them. In all subjects alike was there evidence of progress. In closing the trustees addressed the school, and others spoke of their pleasure at hearing all were doing so well. The competition for Gov. Rolls of Honor was very keen—an honor alike to the winners and the school. The winners were: Nellie Wilson, Proficiency; Katie Furness, Deportment, (losing only one mark in Deportment for the year); Eliza Maxwell, Regularity and Punctuality. The school was in session the full number of days, 221. The visitors were: Messrs Trustees Wilson, Horel and Maxwell, and Mrs. Furness, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Haskins, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Horel, Mrs. Haines, Messrs. Furness, W. L. Pollard, E. Lee, W. G. Perkins, J. Horel, R. Pollard, A. Anderson, J. Pollard. All thought the school had earned its holidays.—Con.

A SCHEME PROPOSED

London, July 2.—Widespread attention has been attracted by Sir Chas. Tupper's imperial federation speech. It is understood that Sir Charles' view is somewhat as follows: As regards the question, anything like parliamentary federation is out of the question as an immediate measure. He is convinced that self interest and mutual support must be the basis of a closer union. This will be secured by a fiscal system, which, without attempting a common tariff for the whole empire, will leave each part of the empire to make its own tariff with a preference for the other parts of the empire. By this each would have a double column tariff, one column for imperial trade and the other for foreign trade. This, Sir Charles Tupper asserts, will not interfere with the accepted principle of the most favored nation treatment, because it refers to the outside world and not to integral parts of the empire. It would only necessitate the termination of a very few minor British treaties in which this vital principle has been neglected.

WAR IN NICARAGUA.

Costa Rican Troops Massed on the Frontier—Brazilian Railway.

Bonner Offers $65,000 For a Trotter—Rejuvenating Naples, Etc.

[By Postal Telegraph.]

PANAMA, July 4.—Costa Rican troops are marching rapidly upon Nicaragua and a war in which all the Central American republics may become embroiled is expected to break out at any moment. It is more than possible that the United States may interfere to protect the newly created interests in the Nicaraguan canal. A formidable body of Costa Rican troops is already massed on the frontier. The trouble arises out of the old boundary dispute between Costa Rica and Nicaragua.

COMPLETED THE ROUT.

CAIRO, July 4.—Col. Wadehouse has returned to Wadi Halfa after completing routing the remainder of the Arab forces.

A HUGE UNDERTAKING.

OTTAWA, July 4.—Civil Engineer R. E. Paulin has returned from Brazil where he went in the interest of a syndicate of Canadian and American capitalists to report on a railway project to open the south eastern section of Brazil. It is also intended to place a fleet of steamers on one of the rivers and establish steam communication between Para, New York and Montreal.

HON. FOSTER AND BRIDE.

OTTAWA, July 4.—Hon. George Foster arrived from the west last night with his bride.

EXTENSIVE PURCHASE.

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 4.—The Manchester ship canal company, of England, has bought the extensive Appleton property, consisting of wharves, elevators, at Port Royal. It is supposed they will run ships to Port Royal from England to carry phosphates and lumber from the interior.

A BIG OFFER.

ST. PAUL, July 4.—An offer of sixty-five thousand dollars has been made by Robert Bonner, of New York, for the Minnesota trotter Axtel, who yesterday made a mile in 2:15½, breaking the record for 3 year old's. The offer was refused.

AMERICAN TEAM ENTERTAINED.

LONDON, July 4.—Last night the London rifle brigade entertained the Massachusetts team at dinner. A large company was present. Major Edward Matthews occupied the chair. After the loyal toasts had been proposed and responded to the chairman proposed the president of the United States and the health of the winning team, observing that he would carry the company back about one hundred years, the reason being that to-morrow was the fourth of July, the anniversary of America's independence. They were now associated with one another. They were now brothers and not fighting one another. Major Frost of the Massachusetts team responded.

17,000 HOUSES COME DOWN.

LONDON, July 4.—King Humbert and his son, the Prince of Naples, recently in his son, the Prince of Naples, recently in the ceremonies attending the inaugurated the work of demolishing 17,000 houses and 62 churches in the most thickly settled and most populous parts of the city of Naples, where the narrow streets, filled with per-sons, filth and pestilence and death. But the real work only began yesterday. But the real work only began yesterday. When nearly 12,000 houses were set to work tearing down the filthy old rookeries in the deserted quarter. This improvement, it is expected, will take four years to complete.

TERRIBLE MINE ACCIDENT.

PARIS, July 4.—A large number of bodies have been recovered from the coal pit at St. Etienne where the explosion of fire damp occurred yesterday. There is no hope of finding any of the entombed men alive.

THE CONGO'S RAILWAY.

BRUSSELS, July 4.—A telegram from the governor-general of the Congo free states says the English steamer from Liverpool, gauging 1800 tons and loading 2500 tons, which left Antwerp on May 18th, has attended the Congo as far as Matadi. The question as to the selection of Matadi as a starting point of the Congo railway is thus decided.

SULLIVAN ARRIVES.

NEW ORLEANS, July 4—John L. Sullivan and party arrived here to-day. Kilrain is expected to-morrow.

PLAIN TESTIMONY.

Michael Davitt Freely Testifies as to Irish Affairs.

LONDON, July 4.—Michael Davitt resumed his testimony before the Parnell Commission to-day. In answer to a question, Davitt said he had no objection to join any movement looking to the independence of Ireland, providing there was force enough to justify such a movement. He said he did not approve of the Clerkenwell explosion. He regretted the attack on the prison at Manchester, when by brave policemen were killed. He said while in prison he became convinced that secret societies would undo all the good effected for Ireland, and when he was released he conferred with the leaders of "Irb" regarding the adoption of an open movement. He failed in his endeavors to win the leaders to his opinions. With the exception of Mathew Harris, the witness would not mention the names of any of the other leaders of "Irb." It was intended to make the land question a stepping stone to independence. Witness said members of the Clan-na-Gael are all extreme Nationalists.

Attorney-General Webster then read a copy of the resolutions demanding the overthrow of the British domination in Ireland and the establishment of an Irish republic. Davitt admitted attending a meeting in America when the resolutions were adopted.

THE WIDE WORLD.

Events Reported by Telegraph—European News.

The report of the mere illness of John Ruskin is unfounded.

The report that Portugal will submit the Delagoa Bay trouble to arbitration is confirmed. The Portuguese directors of the Delagoa Bay Railway have resigned.

The Massachusetts rifle team shot a match yesterday at Bisley, England, with the London Rifle Brigade team. The total scores were: Americans, 1089; Englishmen, 1004.

John D. Barr, umbrella and parasol manufacturer, of San Francisco, filed a petition of insolvency yesterday.

The Philadelphia cricketers closed their first innings against the Dublin club yesterday for 137 runs, Dublin having made 269. The Philadelphians on second innings had made 319 for six wickets when play was stopped for the day.

The Shah dined last evening with Lord Cadogan, and later attended a ball at Buckingham Palace, where he met the Prince of Wales and others of the royal family, many British statesmen, foreign diplomats and others.

The British cabinet has decided to appoint a commission on royal grants to deal with the whole subject of royal grants to members of the royal family from the Imperial treasury. The powers of the commission fixing the amounts in cases where they recommend appropriations of public lands will be limited.

Another terrible colliery disaster is reported from the district of St. Etienne, France. An explosion of fire damp occurred in one of the pits in which 300 miners were at work. Their escape was completely cut off, and there is small chance of any of them being rescued alive. So far it is known that 200 of the entombed miners are dead.

The dispatches stating that the Northern Pacific intended to issue $15,000,000 in new bonds are confirmed at the office of the company in New York. One of the officials states that a plan for raising money to improve the Pacific coast property and acquire additional equipment, and also to take up the Oregon Transcontinental bonds, has been discussed, but nothing definite has been decided on. It will probably be in the shape of a collateral trust loan.

SCOTCHMEN'S PICNIC.

Annual Gathering Under the Auspices of St. Andrew's Society.

The twenty-sixth annual gathering of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian society took place this afternoon at the society's grounds, Beacon Hill. The attendance as usual is large, notwithstanding the high wind which has made things so unpleasant in the city during the whole day. At one o'clock the president and officers of the society and the members of the Sir William Wallace society, took carriages at Campbell's corner and proceeded by the Queen City band drove out to the grounds, where the games commenced at two o'clock. The grounds are gaily decorated with a thousand flags which flutter in the gale. At intervals around the fence which closes the entire field large flags are set up, while two circles of bunting, one above the other, encircles the ring where the sports take place. The effect, with the grounds filled with people, the ladies and children in holiday attire, is pretty and animated. All were able to see the games with comfort, the seats being placed around the ring. The refreshment stands are convenient and supplied with everything necessary to satisfy hunger or quench thirst. An immense band-stand is also a feature of the arrangements, which will come into prominence to-ward the evening. One thing, which those accustomed to Caledonian gatherings could not fail to observe at the picnic, was the absence of the tartan, or perhaps more correctly the presence of so little of it as to make the absence the more visible. As for kilts, there were only a few in eight possibly on account of the high wind and the cool state of the weather. It was hard to distinguish who was from the Land of brown heath and shaggy wood,

Land of the mountain and the flood, and who was not. The piper of the day was Mr. McLellan, of California. The following were the committee in charge of the arrangements:

The President, Mayor Grant; Vice-Presidents, Robt. Mitchell and Robt. McIntosh, and Messrs. Donald McKay, John Robertson, R. P. Rithet, A. Grieve, Geo. Mesn, Dr. Benwick, A. FOURTH OF JULY FIRE.

The Residence of Jacob Sehl, Laurel Point in Flames.

At 2.35 o'clock this afternoon a telephone alarm was sent to the central fire hall, reporting a fire at Jacob Sehl's residence, James Bay. A steam fire engine with reels and other apparatus were at the place in a few minutes after the alarm was given. The roof of the kitchen and the main roof were burning and the high wind was throwing fire all over the place. Water was turned on from James Bay and the fire was under control in a few minutes. A number of neighbors kept the fire in check until the firemen arrived. The work done by the fire brigade was a credit to them. Everyone expected that the fine residence would be entirely consumed. The damage will not amount to $250, which is fully covered by insurance. The cause of the fire could not be ascertained.

POLITICS IN FRANCE.

The Mechanical Majority Does Not Always Crystalize.

PARIS, July 3.—The chamber of deputies had another stormy session to-day, the excitement running high on the proposal of the member of the government to abolish the secret service fund. All shades of opposition united their forces on this motion, and after much wrangling and discussion it was finally passed by a vote of 301 to 292. The announcement of the result was the signal for the wildest demonstration of joy on the part of the opposition, while the government adherents appeared crestfallen. The vote is, however, devoid of the significance which it would seem to imply. The government did not make the retention of the secret service fund a vital issue, and so do not regard the vote to abolish it as amounting to want of confidence.

Balance of Trade.

The balance of trade against the Dominion at the close of the current fiscal year will be something enormous. During the month of May the imports into the Dominion reached $11,[illegible] in value, while the exports only amounted to $[illegible]. Excess of imports $[illegible].

SPORTING NOTES.

Betting Two to One on Sullivan—Sporting Notes in General.

TWO TO ONE ON SULLIVAN.

Baltimore, July 4—Jake Kilrain left for the fighting grounds at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, accompanied by Charley Mitchell, Pony Moore, Johnny Murphy, Dr. J. H. Dougherty, of Atlantic City, and a couple of others. About $1000 are wagered on the result of the fight. Most of the betting here is two to one in favor of Sullivan.

THE GAS.

London, July 4.—P. S. Otts, the American champion, beat Blackmans, the English sculler, by three lengths to-day in the diamond scull race at the Henley regatta.

CHALLENGE.

The Victoria hose team deposited a forfeit in Vancouver on Tuesday, which is still in the hands of the captain of the Seattle hose team, to run Vancouver for $500. The forfeit was not covered by the Vancouver team as stated in the Vancouver papers. Wishing to show our good faith another challenge is issued: "The Victoria hose team challenge the Vancouver No. 1 team to run in Seattle within three weeks for from $250 to $500. A forfeit of $25 is deposited in THE TIMES office. The race to be a 'set test,' under the rules of the Northwestern Firemen's association. Victoria and Vancouver to select one judge and time-keeper. Seattle or Tacoma to furnish the referee. We only ask for a fair race on neutral ground.

"F. HYDES,
"Captain Victoria Hose Team."

NOTES.

The professionals met more than their match in high jumping at the Vancouver sports. A. McLean, of Clover Valley, cleared 5 feet 2 inches, beating Rowe, the professional athlete, by two inches.

Lamotte's Mayflower won the Vancouver city stakes at the horse races, valued at $250.

THE VANCOUVER TOURNAMENT.

EDITOR DAILY TIMES: The article in the Vancouver News-Advertiser is wrong in stating that the New Westminster team were satisfied. They refused to run on the second day and were equally as loud in their protestations at the decision of the judges as the Seattle or Victoria teams. The captains of the visiting teams held a meeting on Tuesday morning, and decided to take no further part in the contests if the protests were disallowed. The judges decided against the protests and the three teams took no further part in the races. The Victorians did not back down at any time. Their money was placed in the hands of responsible parties and was not recovered. The World was right in stating that the race were miserably arranged. The Victoria team went to Vancouver to enter in a friendly contest with the firemen of other cities and it is well known that they wished Seattle last year where they were received in a spirit of friendship which it would be well for the Vancouver firemen to copy. The people of Vancouver were not responsible for the action of those in charge of the tournament and it was patent to all that they, the judges and time-keepers, were not posted in the manner of conducting a tournament. The visitors were also aware from the start that Vancouver was to win every prize with the slowest teams on the ground. The challenge is another solution is not for the sake of money making but to prove that the Victorians are willing to meet them outside of Victoria. Should the Vancouverites prefer we will pay our own expenses and run them for the championship which we consider of more importance than the money.

FRANK HYDES,
Captain Victoria Team.

PROGRESS TO BLAME.

Notwithstanding the remonstrances against Sabbath desecration which are being thundered from the pulpit, and retailed out by the column by all of the religious publications, there is no apparent cessation of the evil, and indeed, if anything, it seems to be on the increase. Besides Sabbath breaking, per se, as thus illustrated, we have the Sunday newspaper, a feature of journalistic enterprise approaching in point of interesting information and literary excellence the standard of magazines, and which at the same time the clergy are vigorously denouncing as an emanation from the devil. These two features of Sabbath breaking constitute a sum total of sin which we shudder to contemplate, and the instinct of self-preservation being strong within us we feel ourselves casting about for somebody or something on whom or which to lay the responsibility. We do not wish to be understood as having exclusive reference to ourself when we speak of self-preservation and an anxiety to make somebody or something responsible for the laxity of our Sabbath observance. We find Sunday a perfect boon, and make the most of it, while so far as our Sunday papers are concerned, after reading exchanges for six days we prefer to do something else on the seventh. Speaking journalistically though, that is in behalf of such of our subscribers as only give the Sabbath a nominal recognition from the opportunities afforded to play "seven up," they must in their sober moments experience a wish to throw the blame of their transgressions on somebody, and thus it is that we speak in the manner we do. In casting about for a reason for this sinfulness we ask ourselves whether it is the result of progression or retrogression. We are told from the pulpit that the world is progressing, and yet, notwithstanding, the Sabbath has degenerated from God's day to man's day, an occasion for revelling and licentiousness. Is this progression? If we are progressing, and each moral departure has been an improvement on the preceding one, the departures we have made on the old time observance of the Sabbath, if kept up at a corresponding ratio, should ultimately lead to the non-observance of the Sabbath altogether. Since thirty years past there have been radical departures from the observance of the Sabbath, and not alone in respect to the laity, but the clergy. If the laity have abandoned meditation and prayer for "seven up", the Bible for the Sunday newspapers, clergymen also have abandoned two-hour for thirty-minute sermons and three sermons Sunday for only two. Progress therefore, between the clergy and the laity has been in direct correlation. As the clergy have progressed from three long sermons per Sunday down to two, so have the laity abandoned some of the Sunday virtues which once distinguished them, and according to this method of reasoning, if progress continues, the clergy will reach the grand climax of progress by playing ball on the Sabbath themselves. Where will the laity be by that time? And yet we are progressing, the clergy say so. As we have progressed we have relaxed. Sunday has become man's day. Either our forefathers were dreadful fools or we are a stiff-necked and perverse generation. And now, on whom or on which shall we lay the blame of our sins? On progress? Seriously, though, we are better observers of the Sabbath than ever before. Of course there are people who flagrantly disregard the primary purpose of the Sabbath, but such always has been the case. In proportion to population Sabbath breakers are no more numerous than they were a hundred years ago. We may be slightly optimistic in our opinion, but we believe that in the main we are correct.

THE GLOBE AND RELIGION.

The Globe, which has always been, so far as we know, a trenchant and consistent champion of Christianity and the concomitant features of it as expressed by prohibition, Sunday observance and the efficiency of prayer, while in no sense wavering in these, comes out under the caption of "Applied Christianity" with almost Ingersollian vehemence, condemning the cant and hypocrisy which is to-day a distinguishing feature of a large proportion of professing Christians. We can do no better than quote:

"The humbugs associated with the name of Christianity have been exposed so often that there is every prospect of their remaining permanent. Who ever thing strange in a woman going to a place of worship for the purpose of pleasing her bonnet on exhibition? Who smiles at the idea that there can be in his eye no one Christian any such thing as sin? What Who is astonished at the not the look of the Founder of Christianity. A gathering of our fashionables in a good Christian church would be shown into the back gallery? How many among the follows of Christ sat upon His plain benching as set down in the New Testament? How many make spiritual caste the basis of favoritism, choosing rather to invite to their tables those who are rich in worldly goods? The essence of Christianity is democracy, but too many alleged Christians are not democratic. They do not say 'I am better than thou,' but everyone who leads a life of respectable selfishness says very plainly to the needy and suffering ones of the earth, 'I am better born, better bred, more refined and more highly cultivated than you,' and the feeling of personal superiority in non-essentials blots out the love of humanity, which is the great essential of a Christian life. What has been called a 'velvet and sealskin religion' is not inconsistent with worldly ambition, but it is inconsistent with that genius for self-sacrifice which constitutes the religion of simplicity and sincerity."

But we are not quoting the Globe as a vent to irreligious sentiments. The presence of hypocrites in the church no more takes away its virtue than the defection of JUDAS destroyed the divinity of CHRIST. Every belief has its bogus votaries. The woman who goes to church to exhibit her new bonnet is no disparagement to the church. She only proves herself to be the slave of vanity. All material questions have a moral basis. The great questions of the day are called political questions, whereas they should be called religious questions, because religious principles are at the bottom of every one of them. This would seem to argue the non-separation of church and state. But not so. The function of the church is creative—that of the government to assimilate and execute. Government should be based on equitable considerations. Equity is crystallized morality, and where shall morality come from if not from religion. Of course, if morals are the simple effect of experience, our argument falls to the ground. If, however, morals are innate, it follows that they are the base of all transactions involving the rights of man. Scarcely anybody doubts the inherency of the moral sense, while we do know that politics are an acquired sense, the crystallization of the moral idea. The responsibilities of the church, or, in fact, of any exponent of morality, are, consequently, something tremendous in relation to human progress, and it is not too much to say that to prevent Christianity from falling into contempt its votaries must practice what they preach. When Christians become as democratic as they preach, when they bury doctrinal hatchets and meet on the common ground of the "golden rule," when in a word they succeed in reducing precept to practice, then will their influence become paramount. The effort to equalize wealth will resolve itself into a simple matter of detail. Between employer and employee, relations will be more harmonious, the re-adjustment of taxation on a righteous basis will be possible and bribery and corruption will fall into disuse for the want of material to put them in practice. To further quote the Globe:

"National religion must remain a lax and feeble affair, and the national conscience a thing unheard of, until individual religion consists of deeds, not words, and the individual conscience be stung into a shamed sense of the differences between a merely professing Christian and a Christian who makes his profession the first step in a life of lofty endeavor and noble performance. It has been said that though the basis of Christianity is the brotherhood of humanity, not one in twenty of us realizes that this means an ideal of daily life as far above our own as the centre of the solar system is above the level of the sea."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

According to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat there are seventy-two men whose combined wealth could pay the United States national debt. That is, their consolidated wealth would amount to $1,270,000,000. The Chicago Journal has been looking over the list and comes to this solid conclusion: "Aside from P. D. Armour, who is in the list for $25,000,000, they have not contributed altogether $2,500 to the flood sufferers." All of which shows that the highest charity and best heart come from the middle classes.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD is about to abandon his seat in the house of commons and go back to the sea. He is, perhaps, wise in his generation, but it is a pity all the same that he has given up his struggle against administrative incapacity and worse. He is able, honest and fearless, and entered the house of commons determined to bring about a reform of the administrative evils, which, as he knew by hard experience, weakened the British navy, and his failure was as marked as his success on the "Condor" was brilliant. DUNDONALD was an able man in every respect, daring, skilful, cautious, astute, and, perhaps, the most successful ship commander that ever lived. He went into the house of commons to redress the wrongs of the navy and the chicanery of parliamentary proceedings involved him in a net that destroyed him. Lord CHARLES BERESFORD is not unlike DUNDONALD in action and in parliament, and DUNDONALD'S fate might be his if he continued in it.

We are not protesting for those who enter the lists in athletic exercises must expect to be downed once in a while. One could have wished, however, that Kamloops, not Minneapolis, had defeated the Amities. It is quite true that Kamloops is a small place and that it would be a difficult matter to pick a nine who could play a first-rate game of baseball. The fact, however, that five out of the Kamloops nine are imported players detracts from the honor of the victory and kills the amateurish flavor. But the defeat of the Amities will have its lesson. This club has perhaps grown a little overconfident. If being beaten opens their eyes to their imperfections and stimulates them to undertake a higher degree of excellence, one can only rejoice in their discomfiture. It is desirable, however, that British Columbia championships should rest between clubs of our own young men. We say this without prejudice to imported men. Their skill is worthy of the highest praise, and Kamloops' enterprise in securing their services is commendable. One could wish, however, not in the interest of the Amities, but in the interest of the province generally, that as far as possible our baseball and all other teams be composed of local men and boys.

MRS. COOPER'S NIECE.

"Philip," said old John Briggs to his son, "you are 28 years old today."

"So the family record says, father," responded the elegant young gentleman addressed; "I am disposed to place implicit reliance upon it."

"You have done nothing else you left college but kill time."

"It is only retaliation in advance, sir. Some day or other the old chap with the scalp lock and scythe will kill me."

"You are too flippant. Since your Aunt Priscilla left you $5,000 a year you have done nothing but spend the money. Your income ought to be enough for a single man, but you draw on me too."

"I'll try to draw on you less, sir."

"It is not that, Philip. You are quite welcome to a check now and then, for I know that you neither game nor revel, and I don't mind your horses, your club, your natural history cases, nor your luxurious tastes. But still you spend more money and get less for it than most young men of your age; have too much, in fact."

"I don't find it too much, sir. In fact, I was thinking what a graceful thing it would be if you were to double it, a mere trifle to a gentleman of your means. I have to use the most pitiful economy, I assure you."

"Oh, that's it, eh? Well, there is a mode to increase it very much. You have heard me speak of Philander Spriggs, of New York?"

"Money lender and skinflint? I have heard of him."

"Nonsense; Philip. He is quite worthy as well as a very wealthy man, and if he prefers to invest ready money in short loans what of that? I lend my money, or some of it, sometimes."

"But not a cent per cent."

"No matter. I don't propose that you shall borrow of him. His has an only child, a daughter, who will inherit all his vast property, just as you will mine."

"Does she shave notes, father?"

"Phil, be kind enough not to indulge in chaff. I have seen her and talked with her. She is young, handsome, well educated and has good taste, a society gentlewoman with domestic tastes."

"Well, father, you are not so old, and since you admire her so much, I see no reason why"——

"Stop your nonsense and listen. Spriggs and I had a talk over it when I was in New York, and we have concluded if you two come together, to chip in equally and settle a half million on you on your wedding day. With what you have you'll do well enough for a while."

"But," demurred Philip, "I don't like Spriggs for a father-in-law."

"Stuff! You don't marry Spriggs."

"And the name. Just think of it! Spr-r-iggs!"

"What of that? With marriage the name is changed. I don't think she'll gain much by it. Spriggs—Briggs. Six of one and a half-dozen of the other."

"I'd like to oblige you, father. I suppose I must marry some day, but it will be some one I love, and then, Philadelphia like, I insist on a woman of good family."

"See here, Phil," exclaimed the father, who by this time was at white heat, "you never knew me to break my word. I merely ask you to marry for your own good. I point out a wife in every way suitable to you. Marry to please me, and I will not only start you fairly in life now, but leave you all I have when I am gone. Marry to suit some foolish fancy of your own, and I'll—yes, I'll found an asylum for idiots. Now you understand me." And Briggs marched off, leaving his son to his meditations.

"If I stay here," said Philip to himself, "father and I will quarrel. Better give the dear old gentleman a chance to cool off. I'll ruralize a little."

That afternoon Philip packed a portmanteau, and with a fishing rod and minimal business, started "off to Montgomery county, where an old college mate of his had married and settled, and whom he had long promised to visit. When he arrived there he learned that Boudinot and his wife had gone to Long Branch for the season, and their servants with them, the house being in charge of a caretaker. Philip heard of good fishing in a stream four miles off, and concluded to try it. He found lodgings at a farmhouse near the place, owned by a man named Seth Cooper.

But neither that day nor that week did he see any woman other than Mrs. Cooper or the hired girl.

As he sat upon the veranda one afternoon debating the matter, a wagon was driven up the lane and stopped at the door. Lightly out stepped a young woman in a neat traveling dress, and the driver followed her with a large trunk, under which he staggered, burly as he was. Mrs. Cooper came from the kitchen and exclaimed: "Why, it's Gwenny, dear!"

"You dear old Aunty Ruth!" said the newcomer, hugging and kissing the farmer's wife. "I came to have a good time for a month."

"And so you shall, my dear," was the hearty reply.

Philip took an ocular inventory of the looks, dress and manner of the newcomer as he took off his hat. "A sweet face and graceful figure and presentable anywhere," was his internal comment. "Here's luck. I shall not visit the Branch yet."

"You have a boarder, aunty," said the girl when upstairs with Mrs. Cooper.

"Yes; he's a Mr. Bee," said the other. "It don't look as if he had any call to work for his living, judging by his white hands and his fix ups, and he's plenty of money."

"Bee! Then he isn't a busy bee. But he's good looking; if he be agreeable he'll do for a walking stick."

Mrs. Cooper's mistake as to Philip was natural enough. When she had asked his name on his coming he had said in his airy way, "Philip B., at your service," and she had taken the sound of the initial for his surname. After she had called him Mr. Bee several times Philip saw the blunder, smiled at it, and, as the naval officers say, "made it so;" and when Gwenny came to the table she was introduced, "Miss Gwenny, Mr. Bee." As she was the niece he concluded her name to be Cooper, but as the farmer addressed her as Miss Gwenny and the farmer's wife as Gwenny, Philip chose the more respectful of the two.

As Philip was a gallant young gentleman, and as the young lady was charming in manner, he naturally paid her much attention. When a young man and young woman are thrown together under such circumstances, it is not unusual for a flirtation to follow. It is generally a foregone conclusion.

Philip soon learned that "Gwenny" was the diminutive of Gwenllian, and not of the more stilted Gwendoline, which interested him. Philip's mother had been a Powell, with Welsh blood in her veins, and bore the same name. This latter Gwenllian was a mystery to him. For the niece of a coarse farmer, for Cooper, though a worthy man, was the reverse of refined, she displayed unquestionably gentle manners. Then she showed a fair knowledge of any subject touched upon in conversation.

What was she, a teacher? She had not the look nor the way of the schoolma'am. A governess? Possibly. If so, in a good family. But her belongings were not of the second hand kind. Philip had a keen eye for female apparel. Her lace was of the rarest; her gloves were perfect and of the newest; her dresses were pretty in material and well fitting, though quiet in tone; and though she displayed little in the way of jewelry, the stone that sparkled on the head of a lace pin was unmistakably a diamond. She had been well cultured, and every word and action showed a purity that fitted her name.

On the other hand, Philip was as much a mystery to the young girl. He was a gentleman beyond doubt. But what was he doing there, a man of culture, refinement and aesthetic tastes, in that farm house? He had said nothing of the Boudinots, which would have explained it. With a little affectation of cynicism, which did not ill become him, the man was as clear as water, frank as air. But why did he loiter there with no apparent purpose? The girl did not at first deem she was the attraction, but it came to her after five weeks, and she grew shy, and her shyness for the last week of her stay infected Philip, who became shy, too, and lost all ease. At length she announced to Mrs. Cooper that she had to return home, and that her father, who was in Philadelphia visiting a friend there, would come for her on the following day, and his friend with him. Philip heard this with a depression that told him he had met hiefate, and that it lay in the power of this girl to make him happy or miserable for life.

All the night that followed Philip lay and tossed restlessly. He could not sleep. He felt that his father would be as good as his word, but he would win a wife then or never. Near morning he arose, dressed, and sat at the window, until the sun showed itself. Then he slipped out of the house and strolled toward a glen a few yards off, intending to remain out until he heard the breakfast bell. It had been a favorite haunt of the two, and yet for the last few days both had avoided it. He made his way to a mossy rock which formed a sort of rustic seat and there he saw Gwenny.

"Miss Gwenllian," he exclaimed.

She rose with a rather embarrassed air. "I rested badly last night, Mr. Bee, and I came out at daybreak. I have been here ever since. The morning air seems to refresh me."

"I have the same experience" he said. "I have rested badly, or rather have not rested at all. I"——

She looked up inquiringly, and at something she read in his eyes, dropped her own, while a flush overspread her face and neck.

"Gwenny!" he said desperately, and took her hand. The fingers trembled in his, but were not withdrawn. "Gwenny," he said, "we are to part today. Do you know that I love you dearer?"

"Do you, Philip?" she murmured, but did not look up.

"Gwenny," he said, "I have been sailing under false colors, but indecently enough. I have a way among my gentleman friends of using my initials, and so I am called among them P. B. or Mr. B. When your aunt asked my name I said 'Mr. B.,' and I did not care to undeceive her; but I desire no concealment from you, unless you do not care for me. Then we will part as we met; but I shall be a changed man."

He waited for a reply. There was slight tightening of her fingers on his as she half whispered:

"You must know that I care for you, Philip."

"Now," said the exultant Philip, "you must let me speak to your father today."

"I fear you may find him rather obstinate," she said. "He sets an undue store by his daughter."

"I can satisfy him of my position in society and that I am able to maintain you. I have means of my own, and have—well, I might say had, great expectations; but my father, who is several times a millionaire, has taken it into his head to fix me with a wife. I prefer to choose one for myself. If you will be content to share what I have, Philip Briggs does not care for more."

"Briggs—Philip!" cried Gwenny, releasing herself from his grasp and looking at him wonderingly. "Is your father's name John?"

"Yes."

"And he lives in Philadelphia?"

"Yes."

Gwenny burst into a peal of silvery laughter. "Do not feel vexed, Philip," she said at length. "I am only laughing at the similarity of our positions. My father chose a husband for me in the same way, and it was to escape discussion of the matter that I took these few weeks' rustication. Mrs. Cooper is my old nurse, and I have called her 'aunty' from the time I could toddle around. She was married from our house. Her husband had very little money and father bought this farm and stocked it. But, oh! think, Philip dear, how your father and mine will chuckle! You are Philip Briggs, and I—I am Gwenllian Spriggs."—Boston Budget.

A Model Dog Story.

A remarkable case of animal intelligence and fidelity has developed in this city. Every one knows the late D. Watson's little dog Zolla, that used to follow him everywhere and often ride beside him in his buggy seat. He would come every morning to his master's office, and if he did not find him there would run over to the livery stable to see if the doctor's buggy was gone, and if it was he would follow the track until he had found him. When his master was in the coffin little Zolla was held up so he could see his face, and showed signs of intense grief.

He was at the funeral at Woodbine cemetery and was the last one to linger at the new made grave. Since that time he has visited the grave nights and morning and is seen sitting upon it keeping watch, as though he expected his kind friend and master. He often wandered alone on the streets at night, and a gentleman whose profile and beard somewhat resemble Dr. Watson's has told us that little Zolla has often walked in front of him and gazed into his face and even followed him home and sat for hours in front of his door waiting for him to come out that he might get one more look at this face so much like the one treasured in his memory.—Jefferson (Ga.) Herald.

A Strange Family.

A very remarkable freak of nature exists on the farm of Mr. J. H. Carter, concession 8, lot 20, township of Tecumseh, county of Lincoln, Bond Head postoffice. On Sunday, a cow belonging to Mr. Carter gave birth to two lambs and a calf. He is a respectable farmer, who would not under any circumstances be guilty of an attempt to palm off a fraud on the public, and the issue has been seen by scores of his neighbors. The attendant circumstances were such as to leave no shadow of doubt on his mind as to the correctness of the statement. The lambs are to all appearance perfect, but larger than ordinary. The calf, a male, is also perfect. The expression in the face of the lambs has a peculiarity, while considerable hair is mixed among the wool, both in the fleece and on the legs. Mr. Carter has already refused an offer of $[illegible] for the dam and family. Mr. Ed Jeff, lecturer on Agriculture for Ontario, and many others have been visitors. So far as known there is no parallel case on record.—Toronto Globe.

TAKES RISKS ON THE CASH OR MUTUAL PLANS.

Assile is a Home Company, organized by British Columbians for the two-fold purpose of giving cheap Insurance and keeping the money in this Province, it commends itself to the support of every insurer desiring the prosperity of this country.

In Ontario, the system of insurance, which is similar to that adopted by this Company, has been in highly successful operation for the past fifty years, and it has proved to be a great advantage to every insurer in it, by reducing the cost of insurance, and it is estimated that now three-fourths of the insurance effected in Ontario is carried by mutual companies.

Good Time.

Mr. Geo. Haynes was at the far end of the railway bridge, on the Indian reserve, when he saw the fire at Sehl's house. It was 2:10. The handcar man returned to the depot and sent in an alarm. The fire bells rang at 2:15, and the engine arrived at Sehl's wharf at 2:20. The first water was thrown at 2:27. Mr. Haynes sat on the reserve, watch in hand, and took the time, marking it down in his note-book. The time, therefore, from the first alarm until the first stream was thrown was exactly 12 minutes, and when the distance which the engine had to go from the engine house—fully three-fourths of a mile—is considered the department is entitled to praise for their promptness in answering the call and the speed at which the engine was taken to the scene of the fire.

Taylor, Conductor; W. H. Huxtable, O. G.; R. C. Fawcett, I. G.; H. Waller, R. S. N. G.; J. Hawkins, L. S. N. G.; M. McCabill, R. S. V. G.; Beaumont Boggs, L. S. V. G.; Jas. Pottinger, R. S. S.; W. H. Victoria Dust Storms.

The sand storms on the deserts of Africa and Arabia are said to be only small matters compared with the drifting dust in the streets of Victoria. Yet in the deserts there are no goods to be destroyed and few pedestrians to be blinded. On this account, it is not necessary to use sprinkling carts there, but if it were, it is believed that some dreamy Arab could be found with sufficient intelligence to bring out his cart during dry and windy weather. The idea of sprinkling a thoroughfare during wet weather, when it is not fit to work at anything else, would scarcely occur to the most practical kind of an Arab.

A Western Welcome.

Married at St. Paul's church, Toronto, Ontario, on the 19th instant Dr. W. A. Richardson of Donald to Carrie, eldest daughter of the late Thomas Watson of Lancashire, England. Dr. and Mrs. Richardson arrived in Donald on Wednesday, and were welcomed in a hearty western way by their friends. The railway track from the water tank to the depot was lined with torpedoes, the bursting of which, as the train pulled in, made many of the passengers imagine they were about to be held up by desperate train robbers. On alighting at the platform, the bride was deluged with showers of rice and the groom's right arm almost shaken from his body. From every house-top and tree-top on Piety terrace, on which stands the doctor's spacious log cabin, floated flags and banners and garments, many of the latter being only used for flags in times of great distress. The welcome was as novel as it was genuinely hearty.—Donald Truth.

Fire at Hillside.

On Wednesday morning Chief Deasy received a telephone message that a grass fire was endangering property on the Work estate. The horse hose reel and seven men were taken to Hillside, where it was found that James Baker's large field was burning. On account of the distance to the nearest fire hydrant it was not considered advisable to lay the hose, which might have been required in the city at a moment's notice. Mr. Baker plowed the ground up to prevent the fire from reaching his standing crop of oats. The fire crossed the furrows several times, but was finally extinguished when it was within a few feet of the standing grain. About twenty neighbors assisted Mr. Baker in suppressing the fire, which was caused by owners of the adjacent property clearing land of brush. The fences were also burned. A party of surveyors on the place were fortunate enough to save their instruments before the fire reached them. The authorities should endeavor to prevent people from burning brush during the dry season.

Playing the "Widow" Racket.

One of the latest fads of Victoria girls is to dress in black from head to foot, with veil and gloves to match, and then, borrowing a neighbor's child, show it around the city. Of course, the natural supposition is that the child is not borrowed, and that the young lady is a widow. As a widow is generally supposed to be ready to recontract matrimony, the sympathies of the susceptible young man are readily aroused, first by curiosity as to how long the child's father has been dead; then what he died of, and, since the widow seems to mourn for him, how she must have cared for the dear departed. And, if she cared for him, why might she not care also for another, and why might not he be the fortunate individual, especially if the first husband left cash enough for the support of two or three, as the case may be. Of course, when acquaintance follows, the apparent widowhood can be easily and innocently explained and the desired happy result will follow.—Donald Truth.

The "latest fad" it is said, was played once in Victoria by a good looking young woman who claimed to be the widow of the editor of Truth. The woman was a "little off" and finding no means of establishing a bashful young man she peddled raffle tickets for a sewing machine.

EAST WELLINGTON.

Three Days Sport—Baseball Match—Cricket—Racing.

The sports for the first day commenced at 10 o'clock this morning and consisted of foot races, running, jumping, throwing hammer, putting shot, wrestling, tug of war, etc. In all the contests handsome prizes have been offered. Certain of the races are to be contested by miners only, but the majority of them are open to the public at large.

Friday morning the sports will commence at 9 o'clock, the first being a match game of baseball between the Wellington and Nanaimo teams for a cash prize of $40. The horse racing is also to come off on Friday. The first is half-mile heats, best two in three for a $200 prize. Other races are for prizes of $50 up to $125. Some exciting sport is anticipated for this day as a number of known speedy horses are expected to participate.

On Saturday there will be a cricket match for $20, a foot ball match for the same sum, glass ball shooting and two quoit matches.

Arrangements have been made with the E. & N. Railway to run trains at excursion rates from Victoria and intermediate points. The tickets will be good from July 4th to 8th inclusive.

Children Enjoy

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious the most gratifying results follow its use, so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

The I. O. G. T. Excursion.

The excursion to Somenos to-day under the auspices of the Independent Order of Good Templars was a grand success. Delegates from the lodges at Victoria, Cedar Hill, Wellington and Nanaimo were present. The excursionists arrived at the grounds by the regular trains and will return this evening by special trains.

Wanton Destruction.

Some unknown vandal entered the private grounds of Mr. Robert Ward last night and destroyed several magnificent hollyhocks. A reward is offered for information that will lead to the punishment of the guilty person. A thief who breaks in and steals is more respectable than the villain who from pure wantonness and without benefitting himself destroys shrubbery and flowers, which cost the owners much care and attention.

Fell Into an Elevator.

A number of strange Siwashes attracted by the extensive and dazzling display in Messrs E. S. Scouller & Co.'s store, marched in and were admiring the various articles displayed for sale. One of them while gazing with enraptured surprise at the articles suspended to the ceiling, walked into the elevator well and received a good deal of damage. He was at once conveyed to the hospital and his injuries dressed.—Guardian.

Ice Machinery.

Ald. S. L. Kelly is in San Francisco purchasing machinery for an ice manufactory. The Colonist, as usual, states that the manufactory turned out a block of ice eight feet square. The block of ice would weigh about three tons. Strange to say there is no machinery in the world to manufacture a piece of ice of the size described in the Colonist this morning. The reporter describing the new industry is small, but the yarn is a whopper.

Racing Horse Injured.

J. Lascelle's well-known racing horse Mayflower was slightly injured on Wednesday while being landed from the steamer at Nanaimo. It seems that as the horse was being taken up the gang plank which was very steep on account of the low tide, she backed over. Before they could get her back on board the vessel she fell into the water. They finally managed to swim her ashore near the boat houses. Fortunately the horse was not severely injured although badly scratched about the legs. Mayflower was entered for the races at East Wellington on Friday, and it is thought she will be recovered by that time.

Board of Trade.

The annual meeting of the British Columbia Board of Trade will be held tomorrow afternoon, beginning at 3 p. m. The officers for the ensuing year will be elected and questions of vital importance to the commercial community will be introduced. A large number of our business men are either not members of the board, or being members abstain from taking a part in its proceedings. This is not right. The board is organized to further the commercial interests of the city and province, and every business man ought not only to be a member, but should take an active part in the meetings and in helping forward the good work. The council of the board desire a large attendance of members to-morrow, as the discussions promise to be interesting and instructive.
